Plagiarism

1. For me, plagiarism is the act of copying some else's work without giving the writer a credit.
2. Most of us plagiarize mainly to have a good grade. When we are not confident or we do not understand the topic we look for sources in the internet. It can also be because of laziness, like for instance we are given a long video to watch and make an essay regarding it.
3. Though plagiarism is not taken seriously, the act of doing it does not bring good to any of us. Worst case scenario of plagiarizing someone's work is going to prison, and as a professional in the making, we make researches of our own. Some day we will realize how it feels like to be an author and will not be given credit with the usage of the work.
4. I think because in the early education there are things that kids need to learn more in order to move forward other than plagiarism. Kids are innocent and as a human instinct, doing school works make them excited. And in early education they are thought basic things in school.
5. Plagiarism is a crime. Though most people is having a hard time to avoid plagiarism because of technology, it is a crime. A person who practices plagiarism could go to jail or carry the conscience ones self.
6. One still continues to plagiarize because of not being caught the first time of doing it. Plagiarism is addicting, and it makes people life easier despite doing it with risk. Furthermore, technology is getting bigger that brings people belief that it is hard to be caught in this situation. Lastly, people stop doing unethical things only when they see someone face the consequence right behind their eye or when they experience it themselves.
